AKC® SYNDICATE

Don't Overheat Your Hound

American Kennel Club® Offers Tips to Keep Your Canine Cool

Summer is a time for both you and your pet to enjoy the great outdoors. However, responsible dog owners need to take some precautions to keep their canine safe during the dog days of summer. As we head into the warmest months of the year, the American Kennel Club® (AKC®) offers the following tips for keeping canines cool.

When Out and About:

Make sure your dog has access to plenty of fresh water. Bring a collapsible bowl that you can refill at water fountains. Freeze a bottle of water or bring ice cubes in a Tupperware container on long outings.

Walk your dog on the grass or dirt where it is cooler. Asphalt can quickly get hot enough to burn the pads of dogs' paws.

Never leave your dog in a vehicle. When it's only 80 degrees outside, a car can heat up to over 120 degrees in just minutes and leaving your windows open does little to prevent heat build-up.

Never tie a dog outside a store while you run errands. If you can't bring your dog inside the store, it's best to leave him home.

Avoid strenuous exercise on extremely hot days. Take walks in the early mornings or evenings, when heat and humidity are less intense.

Cool Canine Ideas:

Check out the latest canine gear. There are many products on the market designed to give your dog relief from the heat including cooling vests, fans that clip onto your dog's crate and mats that cool to 20 degrees below room temperature, among others.

Create your own chill zone. Keep your dog cool by placing a wet towel on a concrete or tile floor in front of a fan or air conditioner.

Don't trim or shave your dog's fur. A dog's coat helps regulate body temperature and protects from sunburn.

Heat Exhaustion 101:

Symptoms of heat exhaustion or stroke include: excessive panting, disorientation and obvious paleness or graying to the gums due to a lack of oxygen. If you feel your dog is suffering from heat exhaustion or heat stroke, act immediately by submerging her in cool water (not ice cold) or by placing ice packs on her neck. Once the dog has been stabilized get her to a vet.

Additional tips on how to keep your canine cool this summer can be found on the AKC Website at www.akc.org.

Ask AKC with Lisa Peterson ---Q & A Advice Column for Dog Owners

Dear Lisa: I have a 6-month-old Brittany Spaniel that I am having an extremely difficult time raising. She is sly and devious. She steals things from the cupboards and kitchen table and takes them outside. She sits down and faces the house and waits for us to try and retrieve the item. She will run around us in circles. She thinks everything is a game. She will not come – ever! She backs up and then after we walk away from the door she will bolt in. She is a smart dog. She heels and sits well. She just refuses to listen. She gives us sly looks out of the corner of her eye. I've never seen anything like this before. We have an 11-year-old Brittany. I have had this breed of dog since I was a kid, as my dad raised them. That's over 50 years! Any suggestions for this pet to stop all the antics? – Sly Puppy

Dear Sly: One of my co-workers is a Brittany expert, having bred them for 25 years. I asked her for some breed-specific tips that might help you rein in this feisty puppy.

Here's Andrea Jordan Lane's Advice: This kind of behavior means it is time to spend some serious one-on-one time with basic training (coming when you are called) and learning to respect the leader. It should be done on a leash. One of the hardest things to do is to resist the temptation to scold the puppy for stealing when he finally comes when called. He won't forget that. Despite how angry you might feel it is very important to praise them when they come on their own. He needs to know that coming is what gets him the attention he is looking for. Another easy trap to fall in to is to call him only when you want to lock him up or put him on a leash.

As natural-born hunters and explorers, Brittanys don't like to be restrained, so if you always call your dog to put him on a leash or in his crate, it will reinforce the fact that he doesn't like to come. Be sure to alternate calling your dog to you to play or to be rewarded with love and attention. My dogs also know the word "cookie" better than their own names. When I find that they are ignoring my calls it only takes a high pitched question of "cookie?" and they come running. The idea is to teach them that coming to you is a positive experience.

To Catch a Thief

The stealing part should be treated separately. It takes catching them in the act and a well-timed delivery to correct them. If you don't catch him in the act, call him to you (after you've taught him that command), reward him for coming and ask for whatever it is that he stole and replace it with something he is allowed to have. Don't scold him when he gives it up either. The only time it is effective to scold for stealing is when you catch them in the act.

These next steps aren't really about training the dog it's about training yourself. Remove the risks for temptation. If you know your dog likes to steal things off the counter then remind yourself to push things on the counter back or put them away. And if you can't focus your full attention on a young Brittany then he shouldn't be trusted loose in the house. He should be crated or confined to "his" area. Mentally, most Brittanys are puppies until they are at least two. A young Brittany has a difficult time staying focused on one thing for very long. After all, there are butterflies to chase, birds to point, worms to dig up and "Oh! What's the neighbor doing?"

Dear Lisa: We have a 6-year-old female Boston Terrier. We are very happy with her, but she has this habit of wanting to scratch the couch cushion or when riding in a car, she will scratch before laying down. How do I break her of this? She has put a hole in the car's fabric which is very frustrating. Do you have any suggestions? – Scratchy Sassy

Dear Scratchy: What you are describing is called "nesting" behavior and is usually seen in females that are about to whelp a litter of puppies! They dig and paw at the ground or in their whelping box shredding newspapers getting ready to give birth. This behavior is triggered by hormonal changes and can be seen in false pregnancies or at certain points in their heat cycle. But since your pet is older and has been doing this for a while, I doubt she's about to have puppies! So, why the nesting?

I've seen this behavior in one of my male dogs too so there must be some other reason beside a shift in female hormones! I have noticed dogs do this when they are outside and preparing a nice area to lie down in the dirt, especially during the summer time when it's hot out. They will paw at the ground and dig it up until they reach the cool earth underneath. Then they will circle around a few times and plop themselves down in their newly excavated area. My dog also dug (or used to) on my leather chair and made a nice mess of it. He did it when no one was home. This behavior appears to be a "prep to lie down" ritual that dogs like to engage in. The only way I stopped the behavior was to remove the chair. But he still does it on the carpet occasionally when he wants to lie down. I wouldn't try to change this natural behavior since it will most likely continue when nobody is around to modify it.

Nails, Nails, Nails!

The best solution is to take away her fabric shedding tools! Those toenails! By keeping her nails trimmed nice and short and, more importantly smooth, she will not have the ability to rip the fabric. With short, smooth tidy nails she will be making a scratching motion with her pads instead of her long sharp toenails. By using a nail grinder rather than a clipper you can create smooth surfaces that won't rip or dig into your car's fabric or couch cushion. You could also cover the sofa with a sheet or blanket to protect it and travel with her in a crate or carrier in the car.

Bark Back ~

A few suggestions from readers regarding keeping those dog pads soft and supple:

Dear Lisa: I always enjoy reading your question and answer column. A reader asked what to put on paws to help prevent dryness and cracking. I have a working Newfoundland who is active (and often wet!) all year round. I swear by a product called "Musher's Secret." It has a food grade wax base that is completely non-toxic. "Musher's Secret" helps with both cold as well as heat exposure including road salt. It also keeps my dog's paws in supple, healthy shape year round. Keep up the good work! – K.L.

Dear Lisa: I use a product called Musher's Secret on the pads of my dog's feet. Booties may also protect the pads. – N.G.

Cuddle this.

If we spay and neuter every dog and shut down all U.S. dog breeders, where will we get the next generation of responsibly-bred pets?

Preserve your rights to own and enjoy your best friend.
